NACE 60-Hour Coaching Certification Program

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

The NACE Coaching Certification Program (CCP) is a training program designed for career services members wishing to demonstrate their success as a career coach using proven ethical and professional standards in their pursuit of the Board-Certified Coach (BCC) credential offered through the Center for Credentialing & Education, Inc. (CCE).

The BCC credential is a mark of distinction for credential holders and a source of credibility for their clients. A BCC has met professional coaching competency standards established by CCE and subject matter experts.

The BCC certification demonstrates to the public that a professional coach has:

- Met educational and training requirements.
- Passed a psychometrically sound coach-specific examination.
- Obtained experience in the field of coaching.
- Professional peer references.
- Accountability to an enforceable ethics code.
- Commitment to continuing education.

The achievement of the BCC credential solidifies the professional identity of the coach. The BCC credential is attractive to professionals who would like to provide independent third-party verification that they have achieved certain coaching competency standards.

COACHING FUNDAMENTALS

The purpose of this course is to understand fundamentals in coaching, including the basics in questioning and listening, and goal setting in coaching. Through the skillful asking of questions and acute listening, coaches increase their ability to connect with coachees in identifying potential, a plan, and assessing progress.

Module 1: Basics in Questioning & Listening

Module 1 Overview: Asking powerful questions and developing acute listening skills are important for a coach to successfully connect and engage with clients. Coaches should develop their skill at asking questions: The ability to ask relevant questions at timely moments facilitates insights, progress, goal setting, communication, and potential. What enables someone to be a good coach is to develop a curious mindset. Coaches must also develop a skill that is parallel to asking good and relevant questions—learning to be an attentive listener.

Module 1 Content Areas:

- The basics of asking questions;
- Mindset and what that means for the coach and coachee;
- Definition of listening: purpose and benefits of active listening; and
- Skills to learn how to improve active listening skills.

Learning Objectives:

- Learn the basics of powerful questions, and how success also lies in listening;
- Listen with good intent, curiosity, and be fully present;
- Learn the components of powerful questions and various methodologies for questioning, such as appreciative inquiry, solutions-focused question, as well as understanding reflection;
- Understand the process of coaching, and questions that work well at various stages of the coaching conversation;
- Review ethics, sensitivity of coaching, meeting the coachee where they are at, and possible barriers to change;
- Cover topics such as active listening, demonstrating compassion, and applying the use of reframing;
- Become aware of and listen acutely to culturally sensitive questions and reflections from the coachee; and
- Understand how powerful questions can promote effective decision making, and aid in the exploration of ideas.

Module 2: Goal Setting & The Coaching Process

Module 2 Overview: The goal of this module is to understand the fundamentals of the coaching process and goal setting. The coach will learn how to establish short- and long-term goals utilizing approaches from various theorists of positive psychology.

Module 2 Content Areas:

- How to assist coachee in establishing short- and long-term goals focused on change and goal attainment;
- Methods for monitoring progress;
- Decision-making models that reduce client risk and promote goal attainment;
- Strategies to leverage coachee's ability to make a change; and
- Support systems and resources needed for goal attainment.

Learning Objectives:

- Learn various approaches to coaching, such as solution-focused approach, person-entered approach, and identifying the elements of the coaching process;
- Understand the importance of the initial coaching conversation, which sets the stage for a successful coaching relationship;
- Question and analyze the process, and coach and coachee expectations;
- Review basic coaching skills, such as active listening, use of powerful questions, role of designing actions, goal setting, and self-management;
- Understand the core elements of coaching, as it relates to self-directed learning; and how the partnership is blame-free; built on trust; and has a solution-focused bias to action; and
- Understand the coachee's preferred process for meeting goals and how to monitor their progress toward attainment of such goals; and
- Utilize skills of assessment to assess the coachee strengths related to goals.

FOUNDATIONS OF ASSESSMENT AND COACHING

The purpose of this course is to understand the concept of assessment and its role in coaching. This class will discuss assessing factors impacting coaching, evaluating the coach environment, factors affecting the decision-making process, as well as the role that assessments play in the coaching process.

Course Content Areas:

- The coaching process: establishing the relationship, understanding bias toward action, assessment, facilitation, transitioning the relationship;
- The factors affecting the coaching process, such as stages of change, attitude, cultural, environment, social, coachee-support system;
- Assessments as a vehicle for change, and how they can be used as powerful coaching tools. When validated and reliable assessments are used within the coaching process, strengths and opportunities can be identified; and
- Factors that can impact a coachee's goals, such as sexual orientation factors, multicultural issues, learning issues, health factors.

Learning Objectives:

- Complete the three units of this course: 1) understanding factors that impact a coachee, 2) the coach environments and decision making, and 3) traditional assessment;
- Complete a mix of instruction, including video, an opportunity for reflection through written activity to dive into the identification of factors impacting the coaching process, guidance and direction as to how to be sensitive. Become aware of these factors with the goal of empowering the coachee to reframe their thoughts and perspectives, identify and clarify goals, identify their potential, ideate a plan, and assess progress;
- Identify existing factors affecting the coaching process: client support, system, attitude, and social factors;
- Establish appropriate career goals based on coachee preferences and assessment results; and
- Empower the coachee to identify goals, and evaluate assessment tools for purpose, appropriateness, and accessibility.
- Review appropriate assessments, based on coachee scenario, that will aid in the attainment of coachee goals.
